FINANCIAL.

At present business is still paralyzed by the ore encouraging news of the past but the more encouraging news of the past twenty four hours lightens the depression that has weighed upon everyone for several days past. The Louisville Journal, of Thursday, gives the following report of the financial condition there: "Nothing whatever was done in commercial or financial business to-day except mere affairs of routine or of urgent necessity. On Main street trade was at a stand, and there was no dealings at bank counters in discounts. As it is impossible to transact business in a satisfactory way, there sact business in a satisfactory way, there s very little call for money accommodations."

The Chicogo Tribune, of Wednesday, says;
The suspension of freight traffic limited suspension with the banks ceased to dvance on bills of lading, and the movement business very much. The banks ceased to advance on bills of lading, and the movement of currency in and out was stopped. The inability of merchants and manufacturers to make or receive consignments had the effect of reducing their transactions in every direction. This state of affairs in some cases increased the need for accommodations, but as a general thing the supply of negotiable paper was small." In our market exchange on New York and the east quoted par buying, if premium selling; Fall River, par; New Orleans of the property, and therefore could not, in all cases, honor the drafts. Shippers had orders to forward stuff which they found it impossible to fill, though some of them had already purchased the property and paid for it. In not a few cases there was real pecunicary embarrassment for these reasons. The York and the cast quoted par buying, 4 pre-mium selling; Fall River, par; New Orleans 4 discount selling, buying at par. As the cotton market is virtually suspended from the bstructions to shipment, no amount of ex-hange worth mentioning is offered, and the hanks were doing little business yesterday. GENERAL TRADE.

The Chicago Tribune, of Wednesday, ported that grain was "inspected into store," and explained: "The above phrase, 'inspected into store,' has a meaning different from the into store, has a meaning different from the usual one. The cars were inspected, and left on track by the inspectors, but only a small proportion of them were run into the elevators, as the work of placing in store was interfered with by the command to cease labor. Hence warehouse receipts were only issued on a small proportion of the property." The same paper adds: "The leading produce markets were very much unsettled yesterday by the labor troubles. The first impulse was to strength, and prices advanced, because it to strength, and prices advanced, because it was feared that our receipts will fall off, the shorts filling freely. The latter feeling was the other way. It was reported that the banks declined to make advances on ship-

property in and out of the city is temporari stopped, made many holders nervous, and some became apprehensive of the safety of their property, and were anxious to sell, so as to let the loss fall on others than themselves ary embarrassment for these reasons. The refusal of the different railroads leading out of the city to receive any freight prevented the execution of orders, and, in the absence of business, values were to a greater or less extent nominal." This account shows us the

The James W. Gaff, Captain R. W. Wise, with Colonel J. D. Moore in the office, departs for the Ohio at five o'clock this evening. Her low rates east are the attraction, since a most pleasant trip by riveris assured as far as Cincinnati, thence by rail on the shortest lings. See advertisement.

Captain Stack Lee strayed away from his boat (the Coahoma) yesterday down Court as far as Second street to the Appeal office, where he lost his bearings and was discover-ed wandering around, inquiring the way back to the river. Colonel Grider kindly took him in charge, and, after the two had boxed the ompass two or three times, they started off, like DeSoto, in search of the Mississippi river.

St. Louis Times, Thursday: "All was quiet and serene at the levee last evening as could be desired. The departing boats shipped up crews at the advanced wages and left on time. The "strikers'" lightning struck the St. Louis levee Wednesday, but the demands of the strikers being readily acceded to, no very great harm was done. The Times, of Thursday, has this about it: "Delegations of strikers visited the different packet companies yesterday and demanded an advance of wages. Their wishes were readily acceded to, when the men retired apparently satisfied. The wages demanded were $90 for stewards, $30 for cabin boys, $140 for the cookhouse, $75 for the pastry cooks, $45 for firemen and $40 for rousters. The Anchor-line, which has been paying good salaries all the time, was not interfered with. The Centennial was detained a short time in shipping up a crew, but left for New Orleans at noon all right."

The St. Lowe Times prints the following

The St. Louis Times prints the following most commendable notice of the Anchor-line pasket company and its president: "It is proper here to observe that the strike has not extended to the steamers of the Anchor-line. The salaries which this company have been paying, are much higher than those of any other which terminates at this city, and both the employes and the strikers are satisfied with them. And it should be recorded to the honor of President Scudder that, while his steamers come in competition with all the boats which navigate the lower Mississippi between Cairo and Vicksburg, he has persist-ently refused to reduce rates below what he considered a fair living price, believing that the laborer is worthy of his hire. His course has been one that challenges the admiration of all conversant with it. of all conversant with it."

New York World, Monday: "Some time ago, the steamer North Star was towed from Aspinwall by the steamer Costa Rica, and although the trip took ten days, it was put on record as the largest 'tow' ever done. This week, however, a greater feat of the kind was done. Captain Dayton, of the steamship City of Vera Cruz, tells the story with as much pride as though his vessel had towed the City of New York from Havana instead of being towed by her. 'The City Vern Cruz,' he said, 'was disabled on the seventh instant, at twenty minutes past nine o'clock in the evening, when about fifty miles out from First, the strap on the cross-head broke, and in consequence the cylinder was smashed by the piston rod. We put back under sail, and made the fifty miles in thirty-seven hours. I found I'd have to get towed smashed by the piston rod. We put back under sail, and made the fifty miles in thirty-seven hours. I found I'd have to get towed to New York, and the Spanish steamer Pedro offered to tow us for ten thousand dollars. But she only makes four or five knots. I finally made arrangements for the New York to tow us. Both the Vera Cruz and the New York to tow us. Both the Vera Cruz and the New York belong to the New York and Mexican mail steamship line. The former is one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five tons burden and the latter seventeen hundred and sixty. The officers of the Spanish navy kindly loaned us the hawser that you see lying on loaned us the hawser that you see lying on the deck. It's one hundred and twenty fathoms long, a thirteen-inch hawser-laid hemp, laid first right-handed and then left-handed. We rigged one shackle through a thimble at the end of the hawser, so as to althimble at the end of the hawser, so as to allow play to the chain it was fastened to if we should want it, and rigged two shackles on the stern of the City of New York. We didn't disturb the cargo, which is mostly damaged cotton and sugar, but we landed our passengers, telling them they'd better take passage on some other ship. Some of them wanted to stay on the Vera Cruz, but we didn't think it was best to let them, and the most of them went on the New York. We started on the fourteenth, at five o'clock in the evening, and came to anchor here at the evening, and came to anchor here at eleven o'clock on the morning of the nine-teenth, making four days thirteen hours and forty minutes for the trip. We call it a quick trip for a steamer to come through in three days and a half, so the time, under the circumstances, was very good. The ship be-haved beautifully, though we had a head-wind and a head-sea for the first twenty-four hours.

After that we got no wind until we were north of Hatteras.' The distance traveled is twelve hundred and sixty miles, so that the speed was over eleven knots an hour."

In offering to planters the GRIP-TIE, the following advantages are claimed for it: Simplicity of application, greater strength, both of the Tie and of the Band, close adjustment and freedom from slip, which prevent any expansion of the bale, and the impossibility of removing the Band without cutting it. The award of the HIGHEST PREMIUM by the Texas State Fair to the GRIP-TIE over the Arrow and all other competitors, is simply an indorsement of the opinion expressed by all planters who have used it, as can be shown by letters and certificates in our possession.
